Dear Murray and Rosa:

Thanks ever so for the rundown from British Museum. How I wish I had been aboard. I would be willing to forego these halcyon days in order to have seen how it was then. I will take this over to Bessie Cammon, who often feels the same way I think.

It was good to see you. I wish we had had time for a talk about books and things. I am always a bit dismayed over the interminable time we take for lunch when I am at the Press. There is always so much to do; I have usually left Earle at Jim's, and we get away in time to run through heavy traffic for the last (six) ferry. I picture the ducks having been consumed by a nocturnal coon, and all sorts of dire calamities. I even had to write a sentence or two at the Press the other day, in order to "make the pages come out even!"

The Iowa book is rolling along I guess. I have the changes and corrections in. They have recommended that title be changed to BOOTS AND FORCEPS. My nephew, also a veterinarian, suggested IS THERE A DOCTOR IN THE HOGHOUSE?

I hope to see you before too long and catch up on all your news. Love, Hazel
